Intergenerational Collaboration

Fostering Communities of Caring

2019 Spirituality in Health Care Conference

Thursday, April 25, 2019
Chiara Center
4875 Laverna Road
Springfield, IL 62707

“Sometimes colleagues of different generations cannot get past the labels to a place of real understanding, and they often do not know they should try. Misunderstanding creates resentment; resentment creates difficulty communicating; miscommunication creates conflict.”

- Jessica Kriegel, author Unfairly Labeled

Conference Objectives

- Identify and name the tensions that exist within an intergenerational workforce
- Address the positive impact that intergenerational relationships have on health care
- Practice approaches for intergenerational collaboration to foster communities of caring

Conference Speakers

Mary E. Homan, MA, MSHCE, DrPH is an assistant professor at Center for Bioethics and Medical Humanities in the Institute for Health & Equity at the Medical College of Wisconsin. Her research area focuses on maternal and child health. She is also the owner and principal of Magis Consulting, LLC. Previously, Mary served as the director of ethics at Mercy West Communities and as an evaluation and data analyst at the Missouri Institute of Mental Health.

Ken Homan, PhD is vice president for ethics and theology with the Sisters of Charity of Leavenworth. In this role, he is responsible for clinical, social, and organizational ethics, church relations and theology, ethics and theology assessment of business ventures, and values-based discernment and decision-making. Ken was professor of theology and religious studies, and chair of the Department of Theology and Philosophy at Quincy University for 15 years. He also taught at Saint Louis University and was professor of theology, director of lay spiritual formation and dean of enrollment management at Aquinas Institute of Theology. Most importantly, Ken will celebrate 40 years of marriage to Sharon in July. Ken and Sharon have four adult children who, with keen intellect, great hearts, and quirky humor, are transforming the world for good.
